Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 15 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Early rain clearing to some sunny spells. Feeling much milder.

Today:
A wet start, but rain gradually clearing east to leave a legacy of low cloud and mist. This too should slowly clear to sunny spells, in a milder day than of late. Perhaps turning cloudier again in the south later. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
A mild night, with rain spreading northeast during the evening. This rain undergoing a lull for a time, before a second band of rain arrives in western areas towards dawn. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Tuesday:
Mild, but cloudy and damp, with rain making slow and erratic progress eastwards, perhaps seeing out the day for many. Possibly becoming brighter but more showery in the west later. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:
Changeable and breezy with some rain possible on all days, but perhaps brightest on Thursday. On the mild side, albeit tempered by the unsettled conditions, with overnight frost probably limited.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.